The Secretary of the Navy Luncheon on Tuesday, April 5 was capped by an awards ceremony, where the Navy League of the United States and Secretary Carlos Del Toro doled out the year's top honors.

The Fleet Admiral Chester W. Nimitz Award, which honors a leader of industry who has made a major contribution to our nation's maritime strength or enhanced our national security, went to Jo Decker, vice president of business winning and strategy at BAE Systems, for her decades-long career "in driving solutions to critical technology challenges in the national security and public safety environment."

The Albert A. Michelson Award, which honors a civilian scientist, technical innovator or technical organization for scientific or technical achievement, was given to Richard Jenkins, founder and CEO of Saildrone. Last year, the company sent its flagship autonomous platform into the eye of Hurricane Sam, a Category 4 that stayed off the East Coast in the Atlantic Ocean. The company took scientific measurements and HD video "that could transform our understanding of hurricane forecasting," according to the award citation.

The award ceremony, which also included the Navy and Marine Corps' group and individual Safety Awards, closed with the Secretary of the Navy's Distinguished Public Service Award, which went to Navy League Past National President William A. Stevenson III for his efforts to reshape the organization's board of directors and overseeing the implementation of active-duty membership during his tenure.
